About the Host City

Lucknow was the capital of Awadh from 1775. Fourth Nawab Asaf-ud-Daula transferred the capital of Awadh from Faizabad to Lucknow and began constructing some splendid architectural marvels. A tradition that was sustained by his successors. Some of the best monuments in Lucknow are the Bara Imambara, Chota Imambara, Roomi Gate etc. Lucknow has rich culture, architecture, music, dance handicrafts and etiquette.

The local culture of Lucknow City and style of speaking Urdu like tashreef rakhie, pahale aap and aap janab makes it different from apart of world. Lucknow is fastest growing city in India that is witnessing an economic boom. It has one of the most dynamic political affairs that keeps on generating the dynamic news and lays an impact on the political status of India.

About the Host Institution

Prasad Institute of Medical Sciences is run by Prasad Education Trust with a vision to make a world class institute for medical and para medical education. It is an institution set up with the objective of providing health services to the society with care, personal touch and perfection. The institute's, mission is – TO REACH THE UNREACHED - to provide outstanding and affordable medical care in a patient friendly environment with a spirit of compassion to all, regardless of race, caste, religion etc.

PIMS is providing free medical care to the weaker sections of the society without compromising in the quality of medical care. 20% of the general beds in the general ward are allotted for free treatment. PIMS Hospital, to create a healthcare powerhouse that has a leadership position in every sphere of healthcare with Medical College, hospital management colleges, pharmacies, diagnostic clinics, medical transcription services, third-party administration and telemedicine, Prasad's leadership extends to all aspects of the healthcare spectrum.
